PARATIONS PROBLEM NFRONTING BRITAIN NOW

Lloyd George Holds Out For Moderate Policy

£56,000,000 PAID

All Of England's Share Spent On Occupation Army

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 3.—In the House of Commons today, detailing the present position of reparations, Sir Robert Horne said that he understood that Germany for the most part had met the requirements of the Reparation Commission but that an arrangement to prevent the flight of capital was easier said than done. Germany had hitherto paid £415,000,000, including cash, ships, submarines etc. Great Britain had obtained £56,000,000 of that sum, practically the whole of which she had spent on her armies of occupation. Britain had so far collected £6,000,000 under the import duties imposed by the Reparations Recovery Act. Germany's taxation receipts last year only covered 63 percent of her domestic expenditure but now leaves a balance towards her Treaty expenditure.

Sir Robert Horne expressed the opinion that Germany would be able and willing to pay considerable sums in reparations if given a respite to put herself in a position to do so.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer dispelled the impression that the Earl of Balfour's letter was in the nature of a suggestion that America should cancel Great Britain's debt. He declared that, on the contrary, the payment of her debts to America was the foundation of the latter.

The Minister pointed out that £2,000,000,000 of our national debt of £7,700,000,000 had not been spent on our own behalf but had been lent to our allies. Illustrating Great Britain's financial burden, the speaker showed that America's national debt represented £47 a head of her population, France £162 and Great Britain £181.

In the debate following the Chancellor's statement, Mr. Asquith urged the immediate scaling down of reparations to what would be really practicable. Britain should forego her share and also forgeo other indebtedness, not as an act of magnanimity but of good business.

Mr. Lloyd George interposed, expressing the hope that the house would let him meet M. Poincare with a free hand. He would do his best to come to an arrangement. Meantime, he would not conceal the danger of driving Germany to despair. He declared that a revolutionary Germany in the center of Europe would be a real world peril, very different from a revolutionary Russia. Nevertheless, it would be a mistake to run away from a fair and just claim.

Germany, the Prime Minister continued, was in the position of somebody who had put other individuals into Court, lost the verdict and was now being sued for costs, not for vindictive reasons but because the winning and unwilling parties wished to get their cash back.

Mr. Lloyd George emphasised the folly of underestimating Germany's capacity owing to the present trade depression. He depicted the possibility of a trade recovery finding Germany without an internal debt and with her external debt fixed while England had an internal debt of £7,000,000,000 and an external debt of £2,000,000,000.

The Premier described the inter-Allied conference on August 7 as a meeting of creditors to which all were going on equal terms. Great Britain was determined to give reasonable and sympathetic consideration to devastated France and Belgium. Britain would be the last country in the world to be accused of want of sympathy toward France and Belgium. "We intend to see that everybody gets fair play; have fairness to Germany; justice to France; but justice also to the people of our own land."

DOG DAYS STUFF

By Westa

THE dog, as everybody knows, is a noble beast. All dogs are noble beasts. You take the common wonk; even he is noble. Doesn't he attract a lot of skeeters that otherwise might jimmy their way inside our nets? Even the lap dog is a noble beast. Plenty of people will say: "What use is a lap dog?" Such a question reveals the great quagmires of ignorance and prejudice into which unthinking people permit themselves to sink. Think of the wealthy ladies that have bought limousines for their lap dogs to ride in, thus keeping the smokestacks of Detroit and Coventry smoking their heads off, you might say. No smoke from the smokestacks, no dividends and no pay rolls, eh what? as Graham-Barrow so quaintly puts it.

Of all dogs, however, the noblest is the noble St. Bernard who patrols the lonely Alps on the constant lookout for travelers and tourists who get tangled up in snowbanks. These dogs, in addition to their great nobility of character, are also very intelligent. In fact it is doubtful if any dogs anywhere are as intelligent as the St. Bernards.

You know how they operate, of course. No? Well, they operate so fashion: Every morning they leave the monastaries, or hospices, as they are called, to nose around among the snowbanks that abound in the neighborhood of St. Bernard's pass—from which they derive their name, by the way—to look for travelers, tourists, mountain climbers or others who may have lost their way and who may be in great danger of death from hunger or cold, or both.

From long experience at their trade these noble beasts have learned that the very first thing a guy wants after he has been parked in a snowbank all night, or maybe two or three nights, or after he has lain on the cold, cold ground a week more or less with a glacier on his neck, is a shot of good old hootch, and the stronger the kick o' the said hootch the better he likes it.

Well, as stated, these intelligent St. Bernards soon learned to appreciate this fact, and so every morning, before starting out on their rounds, they saw to it that the monks attached a sort of young beer keg to their necks, only the stuff in the kegs was not beer. On the contrary it is probably the most high powered rum in the world today, being no less than fifteen hundred years old, having been stored up in the monastary vats away back there in the dim beginnings of history when Hannibal was egging on his foot sore legions by reminding them that on the other side of the Alps lay Italy.

Well, the idea is that when one of these noble St. Bernards comes upon some stranded and half frozen bird with his toes all frost bitten and his whiskers all caked with icicles, his first gracious act is to indicate to the poor lost traveler that by simply opening the little beer keg he will find something that will put him back on even terms with solid comfort. In school books of saluted memory the articles about these St Bernards intimated that the dogs, which are of tremendous size, simply grabbed the lost tourists by the seats of the pants, flopped them over their backs, and toted them forthwith to the monastary.

But that's not the straight of it. All the dog does is to give the tourist a shot of that fifteen hundred year old rum, after which he can walk easily enough. In fact, it is all he can do to restrain himself from trying to jump over the Jung Frau, or even the Matterhorn.

The foregoing is set down somewhat in detail as a means of laying the groundwork for proving our original dog days hypothesis, namely, that the dog is a noble and intelligent beast, and that the St. Bernard is the noblest and smartest of all dogs, particularly the smartest.

Well, it seems that among the tourists in Switzerland this summer there was an American millionaire who all his life had been accustomed to strong drink. His chief complaint, even before prohibition, was that the distillers were diluting their stuff, and in his constant effort to find hootch with a real kick in it he traveled all over the world. Before going to Switzerland he had been in Russia, to try out the famous Bolshevik vodka of which one

William Lorimer Seeks A New Fortune

William Lorimer.

WILLIAM Lorimer, former U. S. Senator from Illinois, is now in the jungles of Colombia, Central America, building railroads. Despite his advanced age and the fact that he is partly blind, Lorimer is seeking to rehabilitate his fortune and pay his debts. He was expelled from the Senate for alleged corrupt practices, the failure of his bank, the La Salle Street Trust Savings Bank, of Chicago, bringing about his financial ruin.

PRESIDENT WILL WAIT NEW MOVES IN U. S. STRIKES

New York Central Official Predicts Further Walk Out

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, August 4.—It is generally expected that President Harding will await further developments in both the coal and railway strikes before making another move. It is thought that the President wishes to give the railway executives reasonable time to demonstrate whether they can meet the situation without the necessity for some drastic step by the Government, like assuming control of transportation. At the same time it is stated that the Administration is carefully watching the situation and will take advantage of any loophole presenting itself, with a view to a settlement.

Indianapolis, August 3.—The Governor of Indiana is sending 250 National Guardsmen to the coalfields and proclaiming martial law in districts where it is proposed to mine coal under military protection.

Chicago, August 3.—A meeting of the leading strikers here yesterday voted in favor of accepting President Harding's proposals for settling the railway strike.

Some opposition developed later and a fight may be made against the note embodying acceptance when drafted.

(China Press Service)

Omaha, August 3.—The Federated Shopcrafts passed a resolution recommending that President Harding should undertake the administration of the railroads for service and not for profit and also to operate mines and let the nation live in peace and prosperity.

New York, August 3.—Chairman Parker of the New York Central maintenance workers predicted a strike of 45,000 maintenence men within the week as a result of the roads' refusal to meet Harding's proposals.

Seamen's Union Sends New Demand For Wage Increase

A third letter demanding an increase in seamen's pay has been addressed to the China Merchants Steam Navigation Co., and presumably to other shipping concerns, by the Chinese National Seamen's Union local branch. The letter contains the threat that unless some response is made by the company the Union will not be responsible for anything "disagreeable" which may occur.

The strike among cargo boat coolies, which began last Sunday and affected some 400 men, has been settled, it was stated yesterday, following a meeting of the transport boat owners at which a wage increase of 17 percent was decided upon.

BALFOUR NOTE MAY LEAD U.S. TO PARE DOWN INTEREST RATE

Debt Commission Likely To Recommend Legislation

LONGER TERM, TOO

American Opinion Apparently Against Cancellation

(Reuter's Service)

New York, August 3.—America's response to the Balfour Note seems to be summed up in the declaration that Great Britain is solvent and must pay.

The Tribune says that a general cancellation of debts would mean that Uncle Sam would bear the burden of letting Germany off.

The World remarks: "Lloyd George has announced the failure of the conference with Poincare before it has started and is trying to throw the blame on the United States. If the Note represents the unalterable position of Britain there is no hope of a settlement of the European situation. American opinion is not ready for a general cancellation but is gradually becoming ready for a cancellation of really uncollectable debts. America will act only when it is demonstrated that Britain, France and Germany have definitely started to return to economic sanity."

The (New York) Times says that the Note jars on American ears, intimating that the United States is the hard-hearted creditor standing in the way of a general generous forgiving of debts which the British Government would be only too happy to undertake outright. "The cancellation of the war-debt by the United States is at present politically impossible. American sentiment in favor of cancellation may yet be developed and then it will be found that the United States is not so mercenary and uncompromising as the Note implies."

Financial officials at Washington incline to the belief that the Note was framed mainly with a view to influencing the approaching negotiations between Mr. Lloyd George and M. Poincare. It is suggested that the Note will possibly confirm the inclination of the American Debt Commission to remommend legislation next session reducing the rate of interest and extending the repayment period for the British debt. Some Congressional leaders are outspokenly opposed to any scheme of cancellation of debts.

Paris, August 3.—The upshot of French comment is reflected in the fresh Poincare ultimatum to Germany (mentioned yesterday), which threatens to produce another grave crisis in Europe.

It is reported that the prospective French coercive measures include the expulsion of German subjects from Alsace-Lorraine, the seizure of their property and wholesale confiscations in the Rhineland.

The Petit Parisien forecasts that M. Poincare's London program includes: willingness to reduce the total German debt conditionally upon Germany's demonstration of good faith by paying up the first 50,000,000,000 gold marks and conditionally upon a common cancellation of inter-Allied debts; that all indemnity payments should be devoted purely to reparations—thus, with the exception of Belgium's 10 percent and Italy's one percent, France would receive the whole.

M. Poincare will probably outline more stringent measures for controlling German finances, including the stabilisation of currency, compelling Germany to hand over a percentage of capital from her industrial concerns, which would serve as a pledge for loans or be expressly devoted to reparations.

Berlin, August 3.—The Government is drafting a reply to M. Poincare, contending that the threatened sanctions are illegal as it cannot be known before August 15 whether Germany will really default.

There was an unparalleled Bourse panic in the chief German cities yesterday and consternation among the German public, with a great rush to convert the mark

How London Greeted The Prince Of Wales

The Prince of Wales Back Home.

THE reception given the Prince of Wales when he returned to London from his world tour is said to have been the most enthusiastic any British prince ever received. Above, the Prince of Wales, Princess Mary and her husband, Viscount Lascelles, and the Duke of York, with Prince Henry at the right, on the balcony of Buckingham Palace. Below, part of the tremendous crowd that cheered him before the royal palace.

Body Formed To Oppose Withdrawal Of Grant To Manchu Household

A large number of influential sympathisers with the Manchu imperial household have organised to protest against the reported proposal to cancel the "Gentlemanly treatment terms" concluded between the Imperial Household and Yuan Shih-k'ai at the establishment of the Republic. A meeting was held here recently and it was decided to approach the Diplomatic Corps, which witnessed the terms of the contract when the Emperor, Hsuan Tung, abdicated in 1911, as well as Parliament and the government officials, appealing for justice.

It was contended that the Manchus deserve the good treatment of the Republic on account of their readiness to withdraw from power. Otherwise, much bloodshed and destruction of property would have resulted if they resisted in 1911.

Following the Fengtien-Chihli strife, it was currently reported in the Chinese press that General Wu Pei-fu suggested to President Li Yuan-hung to the cancellation of the terms. Wu's position was that Yuan Shih-k'ai had merely consented to the terms in order to bridge over the difficulties at that time and the interpretation of the terms by the Imprial Household at present has reflected disgrace to the Republic because a miniature dynasty still exists in Peking since the family occupies the palaces and gazettes appointments as before.

General Wu is said to have favored the retrocession of the imperial properties to the Republic, the removal of the royal members out of Peking and the [illegible] alliances given to the emperor. President Li however suggests that the matter should be given careful consideration before any steps are taken.

The princes of the imperial family also held a meeting recently. Resolutions were passed to ask the Peking government to pay up its arrears to the family, to carry out strictly the terms of the contract concluded between Yuan and the Baby Emperor and to organise a bank for the care of the funds of the royal treasury. The important documents and valuable articles belong to them are being held in trust by foreign interests at Legation quarters.

It will be remembered that eight articles were signed between Yuan Shih-k'ai and Hsuan Tung upon the inauguration of the Republic. They consist of the treatment of Hsuan Tung as an emperor of a foreign country, the payment of $4,000,000 a year for the allowance of the imperial family, the protection of all imperial tombs by Republican soldiers, the permission of the Emperor to reside at the Summer Palace with his usual retinue, the protection of his private property and the financing of the imperial guards, who are to be retained, by the Republican Government.

American Consulate Receives Ruling On Russian Passports

Under a new ruling given by the Department of State the American Consul-General is empowered to grant visas for passports held by Russians in his own discretion, providing for, however, that before any visa can be granted it must be established that the holder of the passport has maintained a residence here for a period of 12 months.

Announcement of the new ruling was made yesterday at the American Consulate.

Big British Roads Are To Amalgamate

(Reuter's Service)

TEA QUALITY TO BE GOAL, ESTATE MANAGERS TOLD

Warned Against Any Coarse Plucking In Effort To Raise The Grade

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 3.—Owing to the fact that practically all the members of the Indian Tea Association are instructing their garden managers to guard against coarse plucking and to aim at quality and not quantity it is now thought probable that this year's crop will not be more than 85 percent of the average production of the five years from 1915 to 1919.

London tea imports from January 1 to July 26 amounted to 194,000,000 pounds (lbs.) against 195,750,000 pounds in 1921. Exports amounted to 19,750,000 against 15,500,000.

League Suggests Name For Peoples Of Mandated Lands

(French Wireless Through Reuter)

Geneva, August 3.—The Permanent Consultative Commission on Mandates has been considering the question of the future nationality of the inhabitants of mandated territories. It has recommended to the Council of the League of Nations that these people should be called "'administres' or 'proteges'" under mandates and should possess a definite national status distinct from that of the subjects or dependents of the mandatory power.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, August 3.—The Mandates Commission of the League of Nations today discussed the question of the existing laws of the inhabitants of the "B" and "C" mandated territories. The hope was expressed that the mandatories would annually supply the League secretariat with statistics regarding imports of all spirits.

CHINESE FLEE TO KULING AS LOOT THREAT GETS ABROAD

Terrible Havoc Is Wrought At Kiukiang

STREET BURNED

Reports Of Loss Of Life Apparently Exaggerated

BY ELSIE McCORMICK
Staff Correspondent the China Press

Kuling, Aug. 4.—A thousand unpaid soldiers belonging to Wu Ching-pao's army have threatened further looting, as a result of which many wealthy Chinese families are flocking to Kuling for safety. The loss of life Wednesday appears not to have been as heavy as first reports indicated. Kuling is not affected by the outbreaks.

Graphic stories of the looting of Kiukiang yesterday were told here today by the first refugees to arrive in Kuling. Tales were related of women jumping into the canals to escape the wrath of Ex-Tuchun Chen Kwan-yuen's unpaid soldiers, and of wholesale destruction by the unruly troops before they were finally scattered at midnight.

Practically every building on the Main Street of Kiukiang was destroyed by the fire which swept everything before it from the West Gate to the Da Ma Lou, the gate near the main wharf and the flames from the conflagration were visible in Kuling.

The fire was checked at the property of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company and although foreign property was endangered, no damage was done to foreigners or their property.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, August 3.—There was extensive looting in the native city of Kiukiang last night and much shooting and many fires. It is reported that the China Import and Export Lumber Company's yards have been burnt out. The city was quiet this morning.

Peking, August 4.—According to foreign reports on the recent looting at Kiukiang, about 300 men of the 1st Kiangsu Division are responsible. The fires destroyed 200 houses in five hours.

Northern troops at Kiukiang awaiting the campaign to be made against Dr. Sun Yat-sen mutinied on Wednesday night and looted the Chinese city according to advices received in Shanghai from several sources.

No reports of foreigners being molested have been received although foreigners living outside the foreign concession are said to have gone into the concession for protection. The British gunboat Gnat and a Japanese gunboat are now at Kiukiang and an American gunboat which has been at Hankow was due there yesterday or today.

The outbreak occurred at 9 o'clock on Wednesday night, according to the best informed reports, and continued until 5 o'clock the next morning when the muntineers were put down by loyal troops.

The troops now at Kiukiang have been augmented within the past few days by several drafts of soldiers from Hankow, sent to the Kiangsi city to join with Northern troops at Nanchang for the campaign to be made against the Canton troops. A representative of THE CHINA PRESS passed through Kiukiang the day before the mutiny and at that time it was said there were approximately 2,000 troops barracked at Kiukiang. All were destined for Nanchang.

Chinese police employed by the foreign concession in Kiukiang have been stopping stragglers and other Chinese soldiers from entering the foreign settlement for some time, so it is assumed that none of the mutineers penetrated into the settlement on Wednesday.

Despite the pessimistic reports little fear is felt for the 3,000 or more foreign residents at Kuling, the Simla of China, because of the large force of foreign males there, and because of the gunboats in the river at Kiukiang. It is not believed that the mutiny will have any effect on the transporation of vacationists and supplies to and from Kuling.

of his booze scouts had informed him, but had left disappointed.

The story goes that one day, after receiving his bill at the Swiss hotel at which he had been stopping he felt very faint, and walked out among the Alps to get some fresh air, and to try to figure out why he had made the great mistake of slaving numerous years at the dill pickle trade to accumulate his millions when he just as easily could have gone to Switzerland and started a hotel for American tourists, thus turning the trick with a fraction of the effort.

Well, while he was sitting on a rock under a snowbank, turning this question over in his mind, he fell asleep, and while he was asleep one of those sudden cold spells that are so common in the Alps, came on, freezing icicles on his whiskers.

Enter our hero, the St. Bernard. The dog, seeing the millionaire's whiskers all surrounded by ice, like those flowers that Louie Ludow puts in his little wooden pond at the Carlton on Saturday nights, immediately concluded that he was a lost tourist, and that he stood in sore need of a shot of that good old fifteen hundred year old rum. So he nipped the millionaire gently on the leg and indicated, with a wave of his paw and a wink of his eye, that just inside the little beer keg there was something that would make him think that, far from being cold, he had lived a sinful life, and was collecting his due reward.

So the millionaire took a shot of the fifteen hundred year old rum, and an instant later was hot footing back to tell that Swiss hotel keeper, who had been a blacksmith before he went into the hotel business, and who stood two hundred and twenty pounds of the solidest brawn and bone in that section of Europe, just what he thought of that bill.

Well, the upshot of it was that they reached a compromise on the hotel bill, which was paid; but the millionaire didn't go home. Not he! On the contrary he stayed there right along, and by special agreement with the hotel proprietor arranged to have his whiskers frozen full of icicles in the hotel's refrigerating plant every day, afterwards repairing to the rock in the lee of the snowbank, to wait for the St. Bernard to come along with his little beer keg full of fifteen hundred year old rum.

Pretty soft for the millionaire!

But alas, it didn't last long, due to the superior intelligence of the St. Bernard. The dog, as a matter of fact, got onto the rich man's game the second day, having had his suspicions aroused on the first, thus showing how really intelligent the St. Bernards are, and how they always are on the lookout for double crossers. But he was a kindly sort of a dog, and as he had taken rather a liking to the millionaire he showed up promptly every day with his little beer keg full of fifteen hundred year old rum.

But one day, when the dog arrived, the beer keg was empty, and on that day, instead of going up to the millionaire and nipping him on the leg, as usual, to awaken him from what the dog knew all along was only pretended unconsciousness, he sat back on his haunches some distance away, waiting for the sun to come out and melt the ice in the pickle manufacturer's whiskers.

The St. Bernard had a surprise in store for his American friend that day—one that he had worked up with great care, and with many pleasant anticipations in his canine mind as to its probable effect.

After the second day of this little drama the St. Bernard had been a daily visitor at the monastery library and reading room, turning through book after book, newspaper after newspaper and magazine after magazine until at last he came upon what he wanted. Finally he found what he was looking for, and it was on the day he found it that he went to the snowbank to meet the beneficiary of his previous generosity.

For on that day, after the sun had come out and after the ice had all melted from the millionaire's whiskers, making it impossible for him to keep up the pretense any longer, the dog, sitting on his haunches perhaps ten feet away, waited for the pickle king's eyes to open, after which he held up one big paw, enclosed in which were two photographs that he had clipped from old magazines in the monastery library.

One was a picture of Pussyfoot Johnson, and the other was a picture of Carrie Nation.

The millionaire took one quick look at them, and then leaped backward over a precipice to the craggy rocks three thousand feet below.

Thus, unfortunately, our story comes to a sad ending, but in view of these facts can there be any possible doubt that the noble St. Bernard is the most intelligent of all dogs?

Movies Not Only Things To Be Censored

Miss Gladys Laverty.

MISS Gladys Laverty, of Eureka, Cal., was to have had her picture in her high school paper. "No! No!" said the school authorities, and they hacksawed it off the plate from which it was to have been printed. They said the picture looked like a naughty immodest flapper. The students declare they will strike before they will attend the commencement exercises. Gladys, who admits she uses a little make-up, says her teachers do the same thing, so there!

Departing Students Being Given Series Of Warm Receptions

Over one hundred Tsing Hua College and other students who are sailing on the Nanking, August 13, to study in American Colleges were guests at a reception given yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. Kan Chuiham of Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Co. by the World's Chinese Students' Federation.

Mr. Wu Ho-sze, secretary of the federation, presided and delivered the speech of welcome. Among other speakers were Mr. J. B. Sawyer, representing the American Consulate-General, Mr. Zau Zoong-hui, editor of the Republic Daily News, Mr. Ho Jui-jen, representing the departing government students and Mr. I. P. Waung, representing the privately supported students.

The departing delegation will be guests at a joint reception to be held at the American Returned Students' Club, p 60 Nanking Road, on Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock by the American University Club and the American Returned Students' Club. Judge Charles S. Lobingier of the United States Court for China and Judge T. S. K. Loh, vice-president of the Returned Students' Club will speak.

On Thursday at 5 o'clock, the Y. M. C. A. will give a reception to the party. The reception will be held at the Association building and an attractive program is being prepared. All members of returned students and others who are interested in this are invited to be present.

500 Aeros For Home Defense, Is Plan

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 3.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Lloyd George stated that the Government had decided to adopt the Air Ministry scheme providing 500 machines for Home defence at an increased cost of £2,000,000 annually, of which £900,000 would be contributed from Air Ministry Economies. Considerable orders for the execution of the program would be placed privately during the current year. The question of further expansion would be considered in the light of the financial situation in 1923 and the air policy of other Powers.

Tang Tells Why He Took Governorship

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 4.—A curious change of public opinion with regard to the Civil Governorship of Hupeh is reported from Wuchang since General Hsiao Yao-nan took over the duties at the request of the Local Assembly, the Chambers of Commerce and other public bodies. They are now insisting that Admiral Tang Hsiang-mien should take up the post.

Admiral Tang made a public speech on August 2. He is reported to have asserted that, when he was appointed Civil Governor, natives of Hupeh in Peking and many Hupeh and Hunan officials offered their congratulations. This had considerable effect in deciding him to accept the post. Admiral Tang called on the Assembly and General Hsiao Yao-nan soon after his arrival in Wuchang but the latter would not see him. Thereupon Admiral Tang returned to Hankow to attend to the affairs arising out of the situation. Officially he is still Civil Governor and could not give up the post without the permission of President Li Yuan-hung.

FOR REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

No woman who has any sense of beauty will deny that superfluous hair is one of the greatest drawbacks to good looks.

Realising this, women of all times have put themselves to any expense, and have endured considerable pain and discomfort in order to rid themselves of this great disfigurement.

Nowadays electrolysis is a prevalent "cure" for this evil, but in reality this process involves a great deal of unnecessary expense, waste of time and pain.

The simplest quickest, and most effective treatment can easily be carried out by any sufferer, in the privacy of her home. This is the recipe:

Procure about 1 oz. powdered pheminol from your chemist; mix a sufficient quantity with a few drops of water into a stiff paste. Apply this carefully and thoroughly to the hair you wish to remove, and allow the paste to dry. In a few minutes it can be gently scraped away. The skin is left absolutely free from hair, and should then be carefully washed in warm water, and if desired, lightly dusted with a little talcum powder. (Advt.)

Changes Made In Y. M. C. A. Staff

Several important changes in the Shanghai Y.M.C.A. staff have been made. Mr. J. H. Geldart, for ten years secretary of this association, has been called by the Soochow Association to become its general secretary and will leave Shanghai early this fall for that city. Mr. W. S. Yang, who graduated from the training course of this association and has served the past year in the student department has gone to Kaifeng to take charge of the boys work in the Y.M.C.A. of that city.

Mr. K. F. Lum comes from the staff of the Honolulu Y.M.C.A. to become secretary of the student department having special responsibility for the student bureau. Mr. Lum is a Chinese, born in Honolulu and educated in America, having graduated from Colgate University.

Mr. Harry Kingman, who has been for one year a student of language school in Nanking, joins the Shanghai staff as student secretary taking over the work formerly carried by Mr. Geldart. Mr. Kingman is a graduate of Pomona College and of the Association College of Springfield. Previous to his arrival in China a year ago, Mr. Kingman was a secretary of the Y.M.C.A. of the University of California.

VESTED RIGHTS CAUSE HITCH AT SHANTUNG MEET

Japanese Hold They Are Valid Until Proved Otherwise

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Aug. 4.—It transpires that another difference of opinion developed at yesterday's session of the Sino-Japanese Commission regarding the difficult interpretation of the term "vested rights" in the Shantung Treaty, Article XXIV of which reads: "The Government of China further declares that vested rights lawfully and equitably acquired by foreign nationals at Kiaochao, whether under the German regime or during the period of the Japanese Administration, will be respected. All questions relating to the status or validity of such vested rights acquired, by Japanese subjects or companies will be adjusted by a Joint Commission."

The Japanese argued along the line that all Japanese-held vested rights were valid until the Chinese proved the contrary. The Chinese maintained that in the nature of the circumstances the burden of the proof of validity rested with the Japanese. This was the position adhered to by the Chinese delegates at Washington because even if validity were established it was open to the Chinese to examine and see if same was lawfully and equitably established.

The Japanese desired that agricultural lands already acquired by Japanese should be permitted to continue although after formal transfer of the Administration no Japanese will be allowed to lease or own further agricultural lands. The Chinese replied that Article X of the terms of understanding annexed to the Treaty specifically excluded agriculture from the scope of lawful pursuits permitted to Japanese under Article XXIII. The Japanese contended that if agricultural lands already held were meant also to be excluded, the Treaty would distinctly say so, as in the case of the salt industry under Article XXV. The Chinese rejoined that at the time that this formula was incorporated as Article XI of the terms of understanding agreed upon at Washington the Chinese delegates were assured that such lands held by Japanese were only two or three and that, therefore, their adjustment by the Joint Commission would be easy.

Finally an attempt was made to define the phrase "lawfully and equitably established." The Japanese contended that the term "lawful" should be interpreted according to Japanese law. The Chinese held that German law should apply to the period of German occupation, Japanese law during the Japanese administration and Chinese law during the examination by Chinese Commissioners of the status or validity of vested rights.

It will be noted that nothing was said about the other half of the phrase, namely, "equitably acquired." It seems to have been taken for granted by both sides that the Chinese will win when the Commission comes to examine the validity of vested rights in the light of universal equity, even though the same rights may be held valid according to German or Japanese law.

Filipino Fined $50 In American Court

Demetrio Buenofior, a Filipino who was held for trial in the U. S. Court for China on May 16 last on a charge of assault made by a ricsha coolie, was tried yesterday and was fined $50 and costs by Judge C. S. Lobingier. U. S. District Attorney L. G. Husar appeared for the Government and Mr. H. O. Rodger appeared for the defendant.

According to the testimony given Buenofior made the attack on the coolie with a pair of scissors in front of the Filipino Club on Yuhang Road after a controversy over the amount of fare to be paid.

Four Matches Decided In Men's Doubles 2nd Round

Two Other Star Matches To Be Played Off Today At Country Club

Four matches in the second round of the Mens Doubles Championships in the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association were decided yesterday afternoon. Ollerdessen and Lock Wei, the Hongkong Chinese star won three straight sets over Grant and Caulton; Sheldon and Wade won three straight over the Japanese pair, Oka and Okazaki; da Silva and A. Leitao won three straight over the Chinese pair, Tyau and Young, and Denham and Master scratched to Sturton and M. B. Brown.

The two odd matches of the second round will be played off this afternoon, Parbury and George meeting the crack Japanese pair Tanaka and Okada at the Country Club at 5, while Elmore and Humphreys play Dawson and Roberts on the same courts commencing at 4:45 o'clock. Gulick and Barrett and Toussaint and Carnavarro already have won their second round matches over Ribiero and Gomes and Barker and Holdsworth, respectively.

Sheldon and Wade had a fair time of it yesterday on the S.C.C. Court against Oka and Okazaki. Sheldon's service and his short court game, together with Wade's watchful play gave the points sufficient to win. The score for the three sets was 6-1, 6-3, 6-3. The point score for the match follows:

		games pts
S. & W.	4 4 4 4 4 4 5—6	29
O. & Oz	1 6 0 1 1 0 3—1—12
S. & W.	0 4 4 2 4 4 2 4—6	28
O. & Oz.	4 0 2 4 2 1 4 2 3—3	22
S. & W.	4 3 2 4 4 4 6 4 4—6	35
O. & Oz.	0 5 4 1 2 2 4 6 0—3	24

Lock Wei, one of the stars for last year's Hongkong tennis team which beat Shanghai in an interport match here, was the strong man of the quartette in the Grant-Caulton vs Ollerdessen-Lock Wei match on the Recs field yesterday. The Chinese by steady and heady play carried his side through to the win. The point score:

O. & L.	5 2 4 5 4 1 4 7—6 32
G. & C.	3 4 1 3 1 4 1 5—2 22
O. & L.	4 4 4 4 1 4 3 4—6 28

G. & C.	4 6 0 4 8 4 1 2 7 1 1 4 1 5 0 3 7 51

No point score was kept on the da Silva-Leitao vs Tyau-Young match, which was played on the P. S. A. Courts.

Ollerdessen and Lock Wei play Toussaint and Carnavarro, last year's doubles champs on the Recs courts Tuesday at 5; Gulick and Barrett meet Sheldon and Wade Tuesday on the S. C. C. courts at the same time. Other third round matches are not yet available.

Americans Lose In Tientsin Tourney

The Tientsin Lawn Tennis Club beat the American Tennis Club in the tournament now going on, by five matches to nil. Individual scores were:

McEachran and Rasmussen beat Donnell and Loeffler 6-2, 6-4.

Hunt and Briault beat Anderson and Guy Smith 6-2, 6-0.

Singles: Rasmussen beat P. C. Grimes 6-1, 6-0.

McEachran beat F. Grimes 6-1, 6-1.

Hunt beat Grafton 6-0, 6-1.

Amateur Nine Plays Two Games At Hongkew Today

The Amateur Combined Ball Players are billed for a busy time at Hongkew Recreation Grounds this afternoon, when they are scheduled to cross bats with a C. A. C. Varsity Nine, and the All Star Filipino Old Timers. Haar, the Varsity youngster, is a pitcher of no mean ability while Billy Spencer and "Jock" for the Amateurs Combined, have shown that they can hurl when called upon. Both these latter pitchers show enviable strike-out records. For the Filipinos, Bonita will figure on the mound. The card shows the Varsity lads working in the first game. The batteries announced are: Billy Spencer and Lobbie for the Amateurs Combined, and Haar with Zau for the C. A. C. In the second of the doubleheader, Bonita will hurl for the Filipinos with Tajardo behind the bat, while for the Amateurs Combined "Jock" will pitch with Madeira, the Big League Catcher, stopping the hot ones. The first game commences at 2:30 p.m. sharp. The line-up for the Amateur Combined will be: A. da Costa, A. Ozorio, L. Marcal, C. Passos, W. Spencer, C. Marcal, E. da Costa, J. Ribeiro and F. Madeira and Emil Lobbie. The line-up for the All Star Filipinos will be: C. Acuuino, H. Toledo, E. de Jesus, C. Tajardo, N. Cuadra, T. Bonita, J. Roperti, J. Inoesucio, and C. Palaloo. The C. A. C. have not yet announced their line-up.

S. V. C. Annual Efficiency Return (1921-22

In the Annual Efficiency Return published as C.R.O. 91 dated July 27, 1922, the Light Horse figures were not only wrong but also should not have been included in the Order of Merit, as it is obviously unfair to compare the efficiency of this Unit which was not classified on musketry with others whose proficiency classification depends considerably thereon.

An amended return is published herewith which cancels that previously published.

Baer: SAYS BUG

CHAMPION GINK STOOD ALONE

He Was Too Proud To Accept Help From His Seconds

BY "BUGS" BAER

Dear Park—

They tell me that Golfer Gink is fifty putts ahead of his nearest competitor. I was refused admission to the Roughtown Country Club because I drove up in a complimentary ambulance and offered to paint the greens committee black and blue. Gink climbed up on the roof when the riot gong sounded and posed as a lightning rod.

He was like a chameleon when trouble started. The Glutt chased him into a vegetable store once but Gink evaded him by jumping into a barrel of cabbages and his ears fooled The Glutt.

For the benefit of humanity and foreign alliances let us hear the truth about this big cruller dip per. ROSS ENGLE.

That's Gink. He was the best boxer on two feet and used them exclusively. He figured that the perfect defense was a marathon with an epilogue.

When he opened his pocket book to buy a cucumber for dinner damp air rushed out like a breath from a cellar.

The rubber band on his bankroll was vulcanized to the only dollar bill on the spool. The filler of his bankroll was autumn leaves. All his money had theatrical costumers' ads on the back and could only be spent behind a row of brightly colored foo'lights while the orchestra played sweet and low.

Gink fought The Glutt to a standstill in 1886 in the old Roughtown dance pavilion. He won first prize for the best costumed fugitive from injustice. The overture was "Poet and Peasant" and Gink knocked his enemy for an option on a wheel chair.

When the Gik of Bromo invited Gink to shoot some wild golf with him in the jungles of India, he accepted cheerfully because he thought that tiger skin rugs were manufactured by a firm in Newark from old rags and paper. Gink didn't know that those rugs once wrapped citizen-eating tigers in them and that the jungles were bulging with sabre-toothed leopards.

Don't be surprised at Gink jumping from Roughtown to India this way, because he used to go down to the wharfs with a merry-go-round ticket in his hand and often boarded trains with nothing but a cigarette coupon for reference.

He teed off on a scissor-face sat hill and drove for the first green, which was an old, mildewed lion's den. Gink made it in one and came out in less.

Gink started in to caddy for the northern lights with the lion keeping close to him for warmth. The Gik piped the lion chaperoning Gink and immediately sold himself a ticket for a tree.

When a patriot got up in the audience and asked who would volunteer to donate five cents for a loaf of bread for the municipal poor, that was when Gink acquired the title of Silent Smith.

He was a champion from the ground up. When he fought, the ground always came up.

Japs To Play Gobs Today; Big Nine Works Tomorrow

Gallop Is Busy Selecting Prospective Visiting Talent

Shanghai lays off today while the All-Star Japanese baseball team meets the nine from the U.S.S. Isabel at 3:30 o'clock. Shanghai will play the Japanese tomorrow afternoon at the same hour.

In the meantime Manager Herby Gallop is tearing his hair trying to keep possible visiting teams from crowding one another into this fair city. Meiji modestly telegraphed from Japan yesterday morning that the best college team in that country would be here on the 16th of August. Gallop immediately raced to the telegraph office and the Meiji manager is now reading a message from Herbert which will delay the trip until after the 20th.

Meanwhile Fort Mills is frantically attempting to reach here before scheduled time while the Peking Marines are crowding on to trains bound for Shanghai. And Tientsin wants to come.

Manager Gallop hopes to sort the teams out so that either Fort Mills or the Marines will be here from the 12th to the 20th. Meiji can come on the 20th. After the 20th, the 15th Infantry will probably be the attraction at the Race Course.

It's either a feast or a famine, and to complicate matters further, a destroyer division is shortly returning to Shanghai, to be followed by other destroyer divisions.

"Y" To Hold Singles Tourney

A tennis tournament (singles) for members of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at the Association ground August 12 to 19. Registration must be in at the physical department August 1 to 7. The tournament is open to all members of the association and all members of the Tennis Club. The entrance for association members is $1 and for club members is 60 cents. Small prizes are to be offered.

The Association Tennis Club has never been as popular as this year. There are over 60 members and the courts are busily engaged every day from four to eight p.m. Any one who desires to join for the month of August may do so by paying $2, ladies $1.

American Thirst Helps Italian Hotel Keepers

(China Mail Service)

Rome, (By Mail).—As a result of American prohibition, all first-class hotels throughout Italy have changed the wording on their letter heads from "Electric Lights, Baths, All Modern Conveniences" to "Electric Lights, Baths, American Bar."

In a like manner the time-honored demand of the Italian tourist guide has been changed from:

"Want a guide, sir?"

"Want a drink, sir?"

The net result has been a vastly increased business both for the hotels and the guides.

The latter state that between a visit to the 400 leading churches of Rome, and the 400 leading bars, American tourists, at least of the male variety, invariably make the circuit of the bars. In fact the average Roman guide says the offer of his services to steer the American tourist around the bars of Rome never fails of acceptance, when his offer to explain the artistic and antiquarian wonders of St. Peter's, the Vatican, the Forum, the Colosseum and the Catacombs was always rather uncertain of acceptance.

In addition, where the pre-prohibition tourist, the moment he had made the round of a few of the glories of Rome, always disposed of the services of his guide at the earliest moment possible, the post-prohibition American tourist always retains the services of the guide till the last. In fact, after making the round of the 400 leading bars, the American tourist, without the continued services of the guide, would never find his way back to the hotel.

Throughout Italy, American prohibition has resulted in a heavy increase of "American Bars" whose alluring signs can now be seen at every turning. In Italy and other European countries the "American Bar" is supposed to designate a place where mixed American drinks are sold.

Each bar is guaranteed to be fitted with an English-speaking bar tender who knows all of the American recipes. As a rule, they speak English but their knowledge of American drinks is limited to Martini, Manhattan, and Bronx.

This, however, they never admit, and when the average cocksure American orders a "blue-moon, a "Soixante-quinse" or some other favorite concoction, the bartender seriously proceeds to mix whichever one of the above three numbers on his repertory that happens to strike his fancy. Naturally there is usually some complaint, but as the bar tender at the Excelsior hotel philosophically explained it:

"I've always noticed that while they may kick about the first or the second cocktail, by the time they get the third one in them they stop kicking entirely. They take then whatever we hand them and seem to like it so well that they can't get too much of it."

In Italy, the government, far from interfering with anyone's inalienable right to have a drink, has rather, in the manner of all paternal European governments, taken the drinker under its protecting wing.

Following the war, when there was a tendency to charge extortinate prices for everything, the government divided all bars, cafes, restaurants and other drinking places up into categories beginning with the place de luxe, then the First, Second and Third class places.

For each class of places a maximum scale of prices for all drinks was fixed which the government does not allow either the propietor or the bar-tender to exceed. As a rule, cocktails and American mixed drinks rank as the costliest.

In a bar de luxe, the fixed government price for cocktals is six lire and everything else on a corresponding basis. In first-class bars this price is reduced to five lire, and so on down for the second and third class places.

According to Italian authorities, American tourists invariably prefer a bun-de-luxe if they can get it, or at least a First-class Bun. However, in cases of emergency between a Third-class-bun and no bun at all they will take the former. In whatever category of jag they care to indulge, however, the government protects them fully in the matter of price.

Only one restriction remains in Italy on drinking and that is a hang-over from the war. At the time when supplies of all kinds were diminishing, the government in order to conserve somewhat the liquor stocks, prohibited the sale of highly spirituous liquors between midnight on Saturday and midnight on Sunday.

The reason why this has never been repealed is very simple. Italians drink very little strong spirituous liquors and the native demand for these is so slight that the restriction has never caused enough inconvenience to result in anyone's demanding its removal.

Its existence only comes to light from time to time when some American tourist demands a strong drink on Sunday. However, instead of being obliged to produce a doctor's certificate as in America in order to satisfy his wants, if he will produce a good-natured wink, the latter will usually suffice.

Virtually the only change in drinking which has taken place in Italy since the beginning of the war has been in the cost. This depends both on the increased cost of production and the heavy taxes imposed by the state. Before the war the average Italian paid 16 cents for his liter of wine. Now he pays three and a half lire. In order to encourage home breweries the government put an almost prohibitive import duty on German beer. As a consequence the Rome street car driver who before the war earned only three lire a day is now obliged to pay two and a half lire for his daily glass of beer—which, however, he is now able to do.

The Government and municipal wine taxes combined made a total of 18 lire for every hundred liters of wine. As the retail price of wine is controlled by the government according to the category of the wine-selling shop, the shops-de-luse and first class places are still able to sell pure wine at the prices fixed, in spite of this heavy taxation.

For the lower category of wine-shops, however, it is generally conceded that an addition of water is necessary in order to sell at the prices fixed, pay taxes, etc. In spite of the fact that Italy is a wine drinking country and wine with every meal is considered absolutely necessary, drunkenness still continues to be confined almost exclusively to visiting tourists. The Italians say that this is because they confine themselves to the use of drink and not to the abuse of it.

Italian physicians are still unanimous in their declaration that between a glass of wine and a glass of American ice-water, the former is far less injurious to the stomach and the health. American tourists in Italy seem to be completely agreed with the Italian physicians on this point.

"PRICELESS"

is a popular way of describing anything which has proved to be of exceptional value, and may therefore be employed to describe that old and favourite preparation—Beecham's Pills. The ever-increasing army of men and women who have experience of this excellent medicine generally use some such phrase as "priceless" or "Worth a guinea a box" when speaking of Beecham's Pills. This is certainly high praise. But it is well-merited. Beecham's Pills have proved, times out of number, to be a "priceless" preparation in the treatment of digestive ailments. They bring relief; they safeguard the health; they effect remarkable cures. All who suffer in any way from biliousness, sick headache, constipation, impaired appetite, and the resulting loss of energy and want of tone should take

MCKENNA'S KID BROTHER STARS IN ENGLISH RACING

J. McKenna, younger brother of Tom McKenna, secretary of the Shanghai Harriers and one of the men most responsible for the resumption of cross country running in China, is emulating his brother in cross country and long distance running with wonderful success, according to copies of the London sporting papers just received in Shanghai.

On June 13 the Sporting Chronicle carries the results of the various county championships in which young McKenna made an enviable record by winning the two mile steeplechase in the Midland championships in 10 min. 5 seconds, the fastest time made for that distance in any of the county or sectional championships. The winner of the same event in the Northern Counties championships took 11 min. 10 1/5 seconds and the winner of the Southern Counties championships 11 min. 32 1/5 seconds for the same distance.

Young McKenna also made his first try at the Windsor to London Marathon Race for the Sporting Life £500 trophy on June 12, the day before he won the Midland steeplechase. Running for the first time over the long 25 mile grind and without sufficient training young McKenna was still able to be one of the leaders until after 15 miles had elapsed. He did not finish chiefly because of new shoes he was wearing that tortured his feet.

At the 5 mile pole McKenna according to the Sporting Life was running in eleventh place. At 10 miles he was running fourth, having advanced by wonderfully steady running, but at the 15 mile post had been forced to drop back to eleventh again, in trouble because of his shoes.

McKenna received his long distance training from Tom McKenna when the Mixed Court official was on home leave in 1920. Since then he has kept steadily at it with evident success and according to the sporting journals is marked as one of the coming younger long distance runners in England. The marathon was won by A. R. Mills of the Leicester Harriers, three time winner of the event and stars from Italy, Denmark, Sweden and France, as well as England, were among the first ten to finish.

DEFENSE ASKS DISMISSAL OF CAMPBELL SUIT

In the suit of Mr. Harry B. Campbell against Mr. H. Gruenebaum which has been on trial for the past several days before Judge C. S. Lobingier of the U. S. Court for China a motion asking the court to dismiss the action was presented yesterday by the defense and was taken under advisement following argument of counsel.

Mr. Campbell is seeking to recover damages in the sum of Tls. 25,000 upon the allegation that by reason of misrepresentation he was induced to leave a valuable position with the Du Pont de Nemours Export Company for a position with Sonn Brothers and Company which subsequently he was forced to surrender. Judge Cornell S. Franklin is appearing for Mr. Campbell and Mr. F. J. Schuhl represents the defense.

Hearing of the case was adjourned on Wednesday afternoon to enable Mr. T. R. Scanlon, assistant manager of Sonn Brothers, to produce a copy of the reply to a cable he had sent to the firm's New York office asking for funds. In the course of testimony that he gave yesterday Mr. Scanlon said he had been unable to get a copy of the answering cablegram but said so far as he could remember it said," Connot remit at present, do the best you can."

It is expected that Judge Lobingier will rule today on the motion for a non-suit.

Tenders Invited for Purchasing the Valuable Properties of the China Merchants' S. N. Co.

In accordance with the resolution passed by the Board of Directors of the above company at their last meeting, tenders are invited for purchasing the following properties:

1. Three buildings in Bubbling Well Road, with land, total area 12m 5f 91, B.C. Lots 2136 7, Municipal Nos. 121, 121A, 122. The buildings Nos. 121 and 121A now occupied, lease expires on the 1st, day of the 9th moon of the 12th year of the Chinese Republic.

2. Four godowns in Broadway, total area 3m 7f 61, B.C. Lot 8543. Municipal Nos. B29, A29, 30, C29. All occupied. Godowns Nos. A29, B29 leased to the Nanyang Cigarette Co. and will be vacated on April 1, 1923. Godown No. 30 to Babani Co. and No. C29 to Dieden Co. Both leases expire April 30, 1924.

The minimum offer for the first lot Tls. 140,000 and that for the second Tls. 120,000. All sealed tenders must be sent in before the 14th prox. and will be opened in the presence of Directors. Only the highest bidding will be accepted, and, when accepted, the bidder will be notified of the same by writing. On the next day he will be required to pay 10 percent his tender price, leaving the balance to be paid in a week's time. If the said balance is not forthcoming when due, he shall forfeit not only the 10 percent bargain money but the privilege of making the purchases, which has then to go to his approximate bidder. All tenders must be made for the two properties together. No separate tenders will be accepted.

Harbour Notification
No. 19 of 1922

Harbour Regulations for the Port of Shanghai
(Clause 16).

The attention of navigators is hereby called to the necessity of complying with Clause 16 of the Harbour Regulations for the Port of Shanghai which reads as follows:—

"Vessels when passing conservancy works in course of construction or conservancy craft engaged in dredging, etc., shall proceed at a slow speed."

As extensive dredging operations are at present in progress in the Whangpoo River, Black Point Reach, all vessels are requested to navigate with caution and to proceed as slow as possible when passing the dredger.

H. E. HILLMAN,
Harbour Master Officiating.

Approved:
C. N. HOLWILL,

Hsiao Yao-nan On The Job In Hupeh

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, August 3.—Regarding the Civil Governor dispute, the position is still at a deadlock.

Peking, August 1.—According to reports from Wuchang General Hsiao Yao-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, has telegraphed to the Central Government saying that the Wuchang Chamber of Commerce and other local bodies, feeling that Admiral Tang Hsiang-ming (newly appointed Civil Governor of Hupeh) did not understand the feelings of the people, requested him to take over the post of Civil Governor concurrently with that of Tuchun.

General Hsiao added that he accepted the offer, on July 29, in order to prevent disturbances. He only accepted the post temporarily and he now requested the Central Government to settle this vexed question.

As the Central Government has already appointed Admiral Tang Civil Governor, General Hsiao's request is looked upon as a suggestion that such appointment should be cancelled.

New Wireless Most Powerful In World

(French Wireless Through Reuter)

Paris, August 3.—The new radio station at Sainte Assise will be opened for commercial traffic with North America as from August 7. The station is capable of communicating direct with any country in the world. Recent trials demonstrated its superiority over all other radio stations at present in existence.

Spanish Cabinet To Discuss Tangier

(Reuter's Service)

Madrid, August 3.—The Premier's secretary announced today that the status of Tangier would be discussed at a conference in London in the second fortnight of September.

Japan To Assist Polish Children

(China Press Service)

Tokio, August 2.—In compliance with the petition from the President of the Relief Society for Polish children, the Japan Red Cross Society, which has hitherto devoted its energies to the protection and transportation of Polish children in Siberia, has decided to relieve 440 Polish children who are found to need the most urgent deliverance as a result of the recent investigations, at the estimated cost of some Y.189,000.

These provery-stricken children are expected to reach Osaka from Vladivostok via Tsuruga on or about August 10 and after being accommodated in Osaka for about 20 days, will be sent home from Kobe at the end of August by way of London.

Deplores Lack Of Airplane Bases

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 3.—In the House of Commons today, Viscount Curzon, asked whether there were any aircraft defences in any British dockyards, fuelling stations or naval establishments abroad other than Malta.

Mr. L. C. M. S. Amery said that he understood that aircraft was available if required for the defence of Port Said, Suez or Aden.

Asked whether that meant that there were no aircraft defences at Singapore and Hongkong, Mr. Amery replied in the affirmative, whereupon Commander Kenworthy remarked "Disgraceful."

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

August 4, 1922

Spot bar silver was down ⅛d. and forward unchanged in London yesterday.

The New York price is unchanged and the London-New York cross rate has advanced to 445.

Our official rates here today were unchanged from yesterday and the market throughout the morning was on the easy side.

At the opening there were sellers of Sterling at 3-5⅝ for practically any delivery to the end of the year and of Gold Dollars at 77¼.

However, there were good buyers at these rates and as there were no bills or cover of any kind offered banks were willing sellers so that at the tiffin interval there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-5⅛ and of Gold Dollars at 77 with buyers at 3-5 9-16 and 77⅛ respectively.

Immediately after the tiffin interval there were buyers of Sterling at 3s. 5⅛d. and of Gold Dollars at 77¼, the market becoming very weak until at the close there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3s. 5⅛d. and of Gold Dollars at 76¾ with buyers at 3s. 5⅜d. and 76¾ respectively.

The best sellers of Yen at the close were offering 62 7-16 only with buyers at 62⅜.

There was a better demand for Franc bills today which could have been placed in the afternoon at 960 although there were very few offered. Both the London and New York silver markets are reported as steady with little doing.

The Week's Market Report

COTTON

In their weekly report on the Shanghai cotton market, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton.—We have had another week of very little interest with fluctuations within narrow limits. Regarding the crop outlook, the attention of the trade is directed to the climatical conditions prevailing along the Valley, Shensi, Shansi, Shasi and Honan where there has been no relief from the dry, hot weather. Rain is becoming a necessity and unless the precipitation be more than mere showers complaints will be freely heard.

In summing up the situation, therefore, we are still of the opinion that prices must advance if present unfavorable weather continues from now on and through picking time.

Yarn:—We are glad to chronicle the firm position of the yarn market during the past week. Some 14,000 to 15,000 bales of local spinnings changed hands at an advance of Tls. 2.00 to Tls. 3.00 for export to Szechuen, Southern and Northern Ports. Over 25,000 bales direct booking with Domestic Mills is recorded at an advance of Tls. 1.00 to Tls. 2.00 from the last low level. The future trend of the market is more than hopeful and brisk revival in new orders is looked forward to by the end of September, or the first part of October.

SPUNT REPORT

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their weekly report on the cotton market:

China Cotton:—Due to favorable reports on the growth of the domestic crop and the small demand on the part of spinners for spot deliveries prices receded somewhat, evolving a net decline of about five mace per picul with an easier undertone at the close.

The extreme diffidence which was so notably manifested up to a recent date in respect of commitments on the new season cotton, is now being gradually dispelled by the continuance of favorable climatic conditions and a fair volume of business may now be recorded in new season cotton for deliveries in October, November and December of this year at reasonable rates, having in view the fact of the plant being still exposed to many vicissitudes before the final harvesting operations become applicable.

Mid-Americans and Indians continue in a steady position and from what is so far discernible the U. S. A. yield is not expected to be fully adequate to world requirements and consequently prices are expected to range for the time being about the 20 cents level with its concomitant effect on the Indian staple. Tone of the market, Easy.

PONGEE SILK

The China Merchants Pongee Association have received the following report from their Chefoo head office on the pongee silk market.

The market has been quiet during the past week. Prices and conditions in the market are as last reported.

Market firm.

HAIRNETS

Messrs. Yannoulates Bros. (China) have received the following report from their Chefoo office on the hairnet market.

There has been a good demand for double capnets during the week. A few thousand gross of 10-38 doubles have been purchased by the Exporters for shipments to America. Single nets are quiet.

The market is steady.

JUTE FABRICS

Mr. J. A. Fredericks writes as follows in his circular on jute fabrics.

The market during the fortnight under review has been featureless with prices at about the same level as in last circular with exception that Heavy C's bluestripe 2¼ lbs. can probably be placed at Tls. 173.

LEAGUE URGES JAIL TERMS FOR OPIUM SELLERS

Peking Association Gets Full Text Of Geneva Resolution

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 1.—The International Anti-Opium Association, Peking, has received the following full text of the resolutions adopted by the Advisory Committee of the League of Nations on the traffic in opium:—

The Advisory Committee have agreed to the following resolutions:—

1.—That the Council of the League should be requested to urge on all States which have not yet done so, and in particular on Switzerland, Persia and Turkey, the desirability of bringing the Opium Convention into force in its entirety without delay.

2.—That it is most desirable that the system of importation certificates unanimously adopted by the Council and the Assembly of the League should be brought into force by countries in Europe, America, Africa and Australia not later than September 1, 1922, and by other countries not later than January 1, 1923, and that the governments should be asked to adopt the form of importation certificates proposed by the Advisory Committee.

3.—That the Health Committee of the League of Nations should be asked by the Council to continue their inquiries into the requirements of the various countries of morphine and other dangerous drugs for medicinal and scientific purposes.

4.—That the Council should invite the Governments of all States signatory to the Convention of 1912, and other States members of the League, to furnish the Secretary-General of the League wih a statement of their country's total requirements for internal consumption per annum dictating separately, if possible the quantities employed respectively for medicinal, scientific and other uses. The statement should distinguish the kinds of opium required and in the case of opium derivatives the amount should be given in terms of morphine content.

The Advisory Committee is further of the opinion that this statement should reach the Secretary-General not later than January 1, 1923, and that it is of particular importance that the quantities of opium required for consumption in Far Eastern countries, where the Chinese are the principal consumers, should be available by that date.

5.—That the Council of the League should, if the necessity arises, invite the Governments of States which are parties to the Convention to facilitate the carrying out in their territories of joint investigations by commissions, appointed partly by the League, into any questions arising under the Opium Convention.

7.—That the Committee notes the promise of the Japanese Government, conveyed through its representative, to make the strictest possible investigation into the illicit traffic in morphine at present being carried on in the Far East; and it recommends that co-operation should be established between the Japanese authorities and the Chinese Maritime Customs with a view to tracing the sources of contraband morphine. It is furher desirable that the discrepancies between the Japanese Import Statistics and the export statistics of certain other countries should be cleared up.

8.—That in order to facilitate the general control of the traffic in dangerous drugs the Committee recommends:—

A.—That the information with regard to the manufacture of cocaine should be completed as soon as possible:

B.—That the Council of the League should invite the Governments to furnish the Secretaries with as close an estimate as possible of the annual requirements of cocaine in their respective countries:

C.—That the Governments should arrange for the mutual exchange of full information concerning all seizures made by their respective customs and police authorities;

D.—That the Governments should consider the advisability of undertaking educational work

E.—That, as experience shows that, in consequence of the enormous profits realised by the illicit traffic in dangerous drugs, pecuniary penalties are no longer sufficient deterrent, the Governments should consider the question of providing for a substantial sentence of imprisonment as an alternative penalty;

F.—That the list of drugs not covered by the Convention of 1912, communicated by the French Government, should be referred to the interested Governments for their observations; and that, pending the receipt of such information, the question of holding a further international conference should be postponed.

9.—That the offer of the League of Red Cross Societies to invite the national Red Cross Societies which are interested in the opium question to undertake educational work as to the evil results of the abuse of opium should be accepted.

10.—That the Council should invite the Governments, in making their annual report to the League on opium and other dangerous drugs to adopt the form prepared by the Advisory Committee; to furnish the report not later than July 1 (in the case of Western countries); and October 1 (in the case of Eastern countries); and to make the report in one or other of the official languages of the League.

W.H.C. SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT

FLAT WALL FINISH

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

WEATHER

Fine weather and intense heat. The typhoon of Guam will travel towards N.W. A depression which has passed yesterday between the Bonin and the Marianas, may come into a typhoon, threatening the Loo choos, then the Eastern and the Yellow Seas with rough weather around Kiu-Siu.

The Allied Debts

ALTHOUGH the view has not been expressed in any of the press comment carried from England or France following the British Note on the Allied War Debts, there is reason, it seems to us, to regard it as revealing the existence of a working agreement between the British and American Governments.

Great Britain wants to pay the United States; and she also wants to collect her dues from Europe, but unless Europe pays her she will place herself at a ruinous disadvantage by paying the United States. The desire to pay has been emphatically stated. Ergo, the way out is an insistence on payment all around. Once such a basic agreement is reached a solution through readjustment and reorganisation of the world financial problem becomes a possibility. The possibility comes the nearer now that there are indications that the financial chaos in Russia has a chance of clearing—as indicated in Lenine's abandonment of the important original and fundamental doctrines enunciated for Bolshevism.

Press comment from America is practically unanimous in the opinion that cancellation of the War Debt is impossible, at least at the present time. But it also contains the view of a future possible reconsideration. "American opinion," says the New York World, "is not ready for a general cancellation but is gradually becoming ready for a cancellation of really uncollectable debts."

There is little ground for thinking the British note to have been thrown out as a "feeler," to sound American sentiment. The position and attitude of the States were already well known. That its purpose was to give America the appearance before the rest of the world of the hard-hearted creditor is a view even less tenable. Neither the United States nor Great Britain have ever shown themselves parsimonious. They have always given bounteously—they are giving now, without hope or anticipation of repayment—and they have always lent generously and paid promptly.

What more logical than that during the Earl of Balfour's attendance at the Washington Conference a working agreement should have been reached with the United States looking toward the solution of a problem facing the world with an ever increasing insistent call for attention, a problem the solving of which must logically lie largely in the hands of Great Britain and America. The success of the Washington Conference on Disarmament may well have inspired the idea for the calling of another conference of the powers to deal with this gigantic task and reports already have been received indicating a planning by the American government to call such a conference at Washington. Should such be the case and should the nations' representatives gather again at the council table we may confidently look to America for as startling a proposal for financial readjustment as was laid before the astonished world when the program for naval disarmament was outlined.

With such a possibility in view it is not difficult to see in the British Note the move to start the ball rolling and in any event it is difficult to think that Great Britain and America are not working together in the matter.

Pavlowa In Childhood

BY KATHERINE WRIGHT

When Anna Pavlowa was eight years old she was taken by her mother to see a performance of Tschaikowsky's ballet "The Sleeping Beauty" at the Maryinsky Theater, Petrograd. During a scene in the second act an old-fashioned waltz was danced by a group of joyous young people.

"How would you like to be able to dance like that?" her mother asked the little girl.

But the future artist was not at all impressed with the idea of mastering such an ordinary accomplishment. While her mother was anticipating the day when she could watch her daughter gracefully gliding over the polished floor of a ballroom, much more ambitious thoughts were occupying the mind of the little girl.

"That kind of dancing would give me very little pleasure," she answered. "I should prefer to dance like the beautiful lady who is playing the Sleeping Beauty. Just you wait and see, mother dear. Some day I shall be the Sleeping Beauty and dance in this very theater."

The story of how this prophecy was fulfilled is told in a French translation of V. Svetloff's "Anna Pavlowa," by W. Petroff, recently published in Paris by Maurice de Brunoff. The volume is one of a limited edition de luxe, beautifully printed and elaborately illustrated. The portraits, many of them in color, show the dancer in all her roles, and include, besides unconventional pictures of Mme. Pavlowa at home, in the theater and on her travels, reproductions of designs made for her costumes by Leon Bakst and others. There is a chapter on "The Origin of Classic Dancing," another on "Pavlowa in Relation to Classic Choreography," while the final pages are devoted to critical eulogies on the dancer's art.

One chapter, "Pages From My Life," is contributed by Pavlowa herself. Here she tells of the ambitions aroused by the performance of "The Sleeping Beauty," which also was the occasion of her first visit to the theater. At that time she was living with her mother in a tiny apartment in Petrograd. She was an only child, and her father's death had left his widow in greatly reduced circumstances. The hope of a lucrative career for her daughter as well as a persistent campaign of tears and pleading on the part of the little girl, finally resulted in a visit to the director of the Imperial Ballet School.

"Our rules forbid us to enter a child eight years old. Come back in two years," was the verdict.

During these two years little Anna thought of nothing but her future career. She read all the books about dancing upon which she could lay her hands and attended every possible performance.

At the end of this period of waiting the little girl began her studies, filled with enthusiasm. For the first time she came into contact with the routine life of the ballet school. Every morning at 8 o'clock a gong awakened the students. The daily ceremonial of washing and dressing was carried out in the presence of a teacher, whose duty it was to examine with critical glances the hair, teeth and hands of each pupil. Next came prayers, chanted before an icon by one of the older students, then at 9 o'clock breakfast of tea and bread and butter. The dancing lesson which followed took place in a great hall, where the portraits of Russian sovereigns looked down from the walls and the only furniture consisted of a piano, several mirrors and a few benches. The classes were taught in rotation, passing into other halls for other studies when the dancing lesson was over. Luncheon was served at 12 o'clock. Afterward the students went for a walk. Between dinner, at 4 o'clock, and supper, at 8, there were more lessons. Nine o'clock was bedtime.

The most exciting days of this well ordered life occurred when the Emperor and the Imperial family visited the school. On those occasions the most accomplished pupils danced for their sovereign on the stage of the little theater, which formed part of the school. Later the royal family invariably took tea with the little dancers and generally observed such democratic behavior that no one felt intimidated or ill at ease. Pavlowa tells of her chagrin, when one day Emperor Alexander III picked up in his arms one of her little school mates.

"I want to be kissed by the Emperor, too," she wailed, bursting into tears. One of the grand dukes, seeing her distress, took her on his knee, but little Pavlowa refused to be comforted.

For six years Pavlowa endured the life of the school which she compares to a convent from which all frivolity is banished and where inflexible discipline reigns. In 1907 she began her first tour in Riga, continuing to Helsingfors, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Prague and Berlin. Paris, London and New York followed.

In spite of her years of experience Pavlowa has never been able to rid herself of stage fright.

"Each time I have to appear," she says, "I am a prey to this overpowering emotion, so common to novices and to artists making a debut. As the years go by this emotion grows stronger instead of disappearing. The cause lies, I think, in the evergrowing artistic responsibility of living up to my reputation."

Concerning her own success Pavlowa is modesty itself. She attributes it to her own indefatigable habit of study and to the excellence of her teachers, chief among these being Maurice Petipa.

Landi Claims He Will Soon Raise Liner Lusitania

London, June 24.—Within a fortnight Count Charles Landi, managing director of the Irs-ready Salvaging and Towing Company, says he will begin operations to raise the Lusitania. He expects to bring the giant liner up intact, and thinks it will be only a short time before she will be able to travel under her own steam.

Count Landi's salvage ship, the Semper Paratus, will come up the Thames for inspection this week and then will proceed to the Irish coast. He says he is undisturbed over the report that an American firm is ready to attempt to salvage the Lusitania, because he has a three year contract granted by the Liverpool and London War Risk Insurance Company, owners of the vessel and her contents.

Count Landi, who is an Italian by birth and a British citizen, says that the reason no attempt has yet been made to raise the Lusitania is that until now no one has had a diving suit which would enable men to descend to such depths. The limit of diving possibilities has not been much more than 120 feet according to the Count, who adds that he has invented a suit which will make it possible for men to work at a depth of 500 feet. As the Lusitania lies under 280 feet of water on a clean gravel bottom he does not think that the task of raising her will be difficult.

He has had much experience, particularly in eastern waters, and says that since the war he has recovered a score of ships in European seas. He raised the French merchantman Evengeline off the island of Corfu in five days after going down personally for inspection purposes. Three days after the vessel had been brought up, he says, she proceeded under her own steam.

Perhaps his greatest achievement was the raising of the American tanker Oilfield, sunk off the Hebrides in 1918. She was cut clean in two. Count Landi decided that the forward half which contained nothing but the empty tanks, was of no value, so he fetched up the stern part containing engines and valuable machinery, and three days later this strange, blunted craft was seen clumsily limping toward Glasgow under her own steam.

H. M. S. King Alfred, a warship of 14,000 tons, which was sunk in Belfast lough, the Count says, he brought up in eight days and she proceeded to Liverpool under her own steam.

Count Landi figures on three days to get the engines working after he has raised a ship. He says that it is natural that there should be no rust on the machinery, as rust is caused by the oxygen in the air. Asked if he expected to send the Lusitania home under her own steam, he said: "Perhaps not, I expect to find the engines put out of business by the torpedo that covered the main steam pipe, thus stopping all mechanical functions, but I expect to have the Lusitania afloat on the Atlantid for the traffic rush next spring."

Count Landi says the best story of all his salvaging tales concerns the King Alfred. When the warship was torpedoed a phonograph concert was going on playing "Rule Britannia." The record was half through when the ship was struck and went down. Months later when the ship was raised the phonograph was full of water but intact, and when it was emptied and adjusted the remaining half of the record was played on the ship. Count Landi, who has worked with the Admiralty, is reported to have salvaged certain ships during the war the identity of which is still unrevealed.

Hays For Better Movies

THE cooperation of the motion picture producers with the National Education Association in finding a way to make pedagogic pictures "which are scientifically, psychologically and pedagogically sound" was offered by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, in an address at Boston recently before the convention of the educators organisation.

"There is already a great demand for pedagogic pictures," Mr. Hays said. "I propose that we jointly study that demand and that we jointly find ways and means of supplying it. Let a committee of this association be appointed, made up of the very best talent within your ranks. Let them meet with the great producers of the country and find ways to use our facilities. We ask you to aid us and to get us and you in the study of the whole problem of the use of motion pictures as a direct pedagogic instrument."

Mr. Hays assured the delegates that the motion picture industry accepted the challenge "in the great demand of the educators that the full instructional value of motion pictures shall be developed and used."

Mr. Hays, taking as his topic "Improvement of Moving Pictures," declared that "the picture frontier has become an orderly business thoroughfare, and the picture pioneer a sober business man."

"Of its own weight," he said, "the industry has settled down commercially into a sanity and conservatism like that of the banking world. It has recognised its responsibility and its duty to the public and it proposes to accept that responsibility and perform that duty."

The motion picture industry, Mr. Hays asserted, objects to political censorship for "one great reason—because the motion picture business is an American business."

"But there is one place and one only where the evils can be eliminated and the good and great advantages of motion pictures retained," he continued, "and that is at the point where and when the pictures are made. And it can be done then and there, make no mistake about that. There is no zone of twilight in the matter.

"The corrections can be made, real evil can and must be kept out—the highest standards of art, taste and morals can be achieved, and it is primarily the duty of the producers to do it."

Changes In Court System Advocated By French People

Paris, July 3.—Agitation has been started for the adoption by France of the American system of "preliminary hearings" in cases where complaint has been brought against an individual or for some other reform of the present methods, which date from the time of Napoleon.

Any person, however good his record, who is charged by another person with a crime or misdemeanor, may, under the present system, be subjected to all sorts of indignities and his reputation ruined for life, according to a legal authority writing in Le Matin.

Whether you are accused of murdering your cook or filching an artichoke out of your neighbor's icebox—only the French don't have iceboxes—or slandering somebody, or refusing to pay your rent, or anything at all, you are held to be guilty until you prove yourself innocent and treated that way.

According to the article, an accused person is practically subject to the whim of the judge to whom the accusation is made. He can be called at any hour, his effects can be searched and his servants and friends questioned; his credit can be curtailed at the bank; he can even be arrested and thrown into jail. "No matter if he is the most honest of men and the complainant a scamp, the unhappy one has become 'the accused,'" writes the authority. "The fact that it may be the first time a man is haled into court makes no difference at all.

"If a man is proved innocent by trial and released from jail or embarrassing surveillance the odium still clings," says the authority. He has only two recourses—he may get a sort of certificate of innocence from the judge, and he may sue the complainant for calumny. Neither," the writer concludes, "is much satisfaction, especially as the neighbors, enjoying gossip too much to let it die, never again act the same as before toward 'the accused,' although his innocence has been legally proved.

"Of recent years," continues the writer, "abuses of this system have been even greater than previously. The allegations of maniacs or of swindlers are made the basis of accusations that give their victims infinite embarrassment and trouble, cost them money and may in the end spoil their whole lives."

Russia Letting Down Bars For Foreign Capital

Moscow, Saturday, June 15.—"Russian industry is in a deplorable condition," said M. Lezhava, chairman of the concessions committee of the supreme council of people's economy, in an interview which he granted the correspondent today. "We are trying to resuscitate it, but to do this wholly by ourselves is a long process and hence the invitation to foreign capitalists to co-operate with us for mutual benefit."

M. Lezhava is typical of the best type of Russian big business men. His office is organised on western lines. He was formerly insurance chief in the Volga region, more recently assistant chief of foreign trade affairs, and now head of the department dealing with foreign concessions.

"Were I able to address a group of American capitalists," he continued, "I should tell them first that we Russians desire the assistance of foreigners who will not merely extract and export our natural mineral wealth, but will manufacture it within Russia.

"For this we offer tempting attractions. The potential market within our own territory is capable of absorbing all possible production for years to come. The conditions of labor here in Russia are more favorable to employers than anywhere else because the principal industries are in the hands of the government, which because of the hard economic conditions cannot hamper the workers, and this influences the conditions of employment generally.

"Russian workers today are in a psychological state in which they will support actively any attempt to revive production. They want our industry restarted. Only 10 percent of the skilled workers are now employed at their trades, but a large part of the remainder would be readily available. At the first sight of smoking chimneys they will flock back again. That has been our experience everywhere. The government will do nothing to hinder but everything to encourage production. We recognise the vital necessity of increasing our output.

"I would first urge upon American capitalists the enormous possibilities of our metallurgic industry. We have mineral resources unequaled anywhere else in the world. Our manganese ores and iron and coal resources are inexhaustible. Every expert knows the incredible resources of the Donetz and Kuznetz coal basins. Were some great foreign organisations prepared to take over the ore areas, we would regard it as complimentary. They could obtain mining and other concessions covering the entire range of supplementary activities insuring them the most economic production.

"Such a corporation would be able to arrange its labor terms not with small groups of isolated men, but with great trade organisations, the authority of which enables them to enforce the observance of the terms agreed upon. Our experience is that employers gain greatly by this thorough organisation, both sides knowing exactly where they stand and insuring that the contracts will be protected.

"After metallurgy there is a great opportunity for reorganising and opening up of locomotive shops, car construction and repair works for the revival of our transport facilities. This requires technical skill and organising ability, but little capital.

"Best of all are the hances in the chemical industries, which offer practically a virgin field. There is an enormous demand in Russia for chemical products and medicaments. We have all the raw material necessary for production, but we now import our drugs from Germany. The market is ready at hand for the first comer. The automobile field is promising, owing to our long distances and few railroads. Henry Ford would find a great manufacturing field here. The International Harvester Company, now working in Russia, proves that there is a great demand for harvesting machinery.

"There are a few suggestions as to the world's greatest potential market. Our government is willing to give the foreign capitalists and experts every assistance, and labor is eager to co-operate with them. That is our invitation."

The Mastodon As He Was When Alive

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

Stopping in Albany the other day I visited the New York State Museum, to pay my respects to the "reincarnated mastodon," whose immense brown form, like a mountain of hair, towers by the side of the mighty skeleton of its prehistoric prototype, the celebrated "Cohoes mastodon," which is one of the biggest and most perfect fossils ever found in the world.

For thoughtful visitors to the Empire State, this mastodon is a more instructive exhibit than Wall Street. It shows what unrestricted gobbling could accomplish in antediluvian times, and its fate, together with that of all its gigantic compeers, equally well illustrates nature's law of "not too much"—a law that she only temporarily violates.

The mastodon had too big bones, too much flesh, too capacious a stomach. It took fifty times as much material to make him as to make a man, and fifty times as much to feed him. Nature found that it was wasteful to people this little earth with such disproportioned monsters. A creature like that would trample down and destroy as much as it fed upon.

It was so heavy and slow that it could not move rapidly about like smaller mammals, seeking nourishment on broad plains and uplands and on hill slopes, where vegetation flourished in the sunshine. The mastodon was uneconomical simply because of his bigness and clumsiness. It required a relatively vast area of ground to produce enough food for him, and before he could cover it the food was snatched away by smaller, more active animals of his class, the mammals.

No more striking proof of the truth of the doctrine of natural selection or the survival of the fit could be found than the disappearance of the mastodons. They were doubtfully fitted to their own times, being most abundant after the retreat of the glaciers and when vegetation was less rich than today. They seem to have lived chiefly in river valleys, those of the Hudson and lower Mohawk being preferred. Here they got themselves mired in deep swamps and perished most miserably. The skeleton of the mastodon of the Albany museum was found in a huge "glacial mill," or pothole, ground out by whirling stones, and in the rock bed of the Mohawk at the Cohoes falls.

No Egyptian king had a better sarcophagus than this glacier-carved rock tomb of the mastodon. A flood in the prehistoric river, than a far greater stream than the Mohawk of today, must have lodged the huge body in its ready-made tomb. And there it lay, unsuspected, from a time antedating by thousands of years the oldest recorded human history. Then, so late as 1866, some digging for construction over the mastodon's grave uncovered his bones.

The restoration, or "reincarnation," of the giant has been effected by Noah T. Clarke and Charles P. Heidenrich. They have been guided by all that science is able to tell of the probable appearance of the mastodons in life, and there is no reason to suppose that the creature whose body was swept into the glacial hill at Conoes and entombed there for such long ages looked very different, when he walked the swampy shores of the greater Mohawk in late pleistocene times, from the impressive avatar of him now standing motionless in the museum, side by side with his actual skeleton.

His grand curved tusks and his long, corrugated, black "trunk" suggest at first sight an enormous elephant. But the long shaggy, matted hair with which his head and body, and largely his massive limbs, are covered, give him a much wilder and more savage aspect than that of the smooth mouse-colored, tropics-loving elephant.

He seems to summon around him the chilled atmosphere in which he lived along the banks of the cold rivers and standing ponds that the retreating glaciers fed. His bead-like eyes, surrounded by black horney-ridged circles, seem to be reflecting the tempered gleams of the ancient sunlight that stole through the dark hemlock thickets bordering his favorite haunts.

His sturdy, short legs are as thick as tree trunks, and his long tail, with a tufted end, looks capable of knocking a row of men with a single flirt. But it may be that we men had not yet been born in his day, at least on this continent. His form viewed from the rear is daunting. It seems as broad as the bow of a ship, and the impression that it gives of crushing weight and overwhelming muscular strength dismays the beholder.

If there were any representatives of our kind in America in the days of the mastodon, and if one of them, wandering in the woods, had come in sight of those mighty haunches he would surely never have stopped long enough to see the other end of the immense animal where the eyes were! He would have thanked whatever gods he knew for giving him a chance to steal away unseen.

Found in the land of the patroons, this animal has strikingly the traditional broad, squat, sturdy, massive figure of the Hollander. The mastodon was, physically, the prehistoric "Mohawk Dutchman."

About The Famous

An interesting reference to Swinburne's "manners at the table," which were of the "old courtly school," is contained in Mrs. Watts-Dunton's reminiscences of the famous poet. We are told that he would never think of helping himself until he was quite sure that you had everything you wanted. The salt or the mustard he would pass to you with a little smiling bow and an air of genuine courtliness. The poet was exceedingly punctilious over small observances. It would never occur to him, at the end of the repast, to throw his napkin down in an untidy heap for a servant to collect and adjust. It was the hero, so to speak, of quite a little ceremony. The rolling-up of it seemed to afford him a real pleasure. He would fold the ends together and smooth out the creases with religious solicitude before slipping it back into its ring. And should the folding fail to come up to his idea of artistic perfection, he would undo the work of his hands and perform the ceremony all over again. When he was really sure that all the requirements of the case had been met, "he would look up at us with a happy, boyish smile and a satisfied ejaculation of 'Ah!' as if he had accomplished some difficult feat."

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELIS

Will Watson runs a village store as did his pa before him; the loafers camp around his door, but never vex or bore him.
They talk of church and politics, they chat of war and weather; in groups they stand and whittle sticks for many hours together. Will's tongue wags swiftest of the bunch, his speech is never-ending; he always has an inside lunch on each event that's pending. "I know those Roosian feller's ways," he tells his eager hearers, "they had to come to grievous days, for they were holy terrors. Old Asia's cutting up high jinks since China's kicked the traces; I'd like to see those slant-eyed Chinks go through their fighting paces." Will gives his days to themes like these; they fill each waking hour. He can't get down to slicing cheese and selling sacks of flour. And so, when folks want bread and meat and artichokes and parsley, they choose Smith's store, across the street, where words are used but sparsely. Old Earth keeps whirling on through space, it never once stops spinning, and every chap must keep the pace if he would have his inning.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

What is Castoria?

CASTORIA is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Comfort—The Mother's Friend.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper of genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"My patients invariably praise the action of your Castoria." W. W. Turver M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children." J. W. Dinsdale, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"During my medical practice I know of several cases where your Castoria was prescribed and used with good results." K. Mosoner, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Your Castoria is the best remedy in the world for children and the only one I use and recommend." Agnes V. Swetland, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Your Castoria is certainly the greatest remedy for children I know of. I know no other proprietary preparation which is its equal." B. S. Schwartz, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy." M. D. Bezuyen, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Drinks He's Mixed Would Float Ship

LOUIS Gautier, sixty-two years old, is bartender on the liner La Touraine, of the French line. He has been with the line for forty-seven years. He declares that if a lake were made of all the drinks he has mixed they would float the giant liner on which he sails.

Says British Firms Still Get Preference

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 2.—In the House of Commons today replying to Mr. C. E. L. Lyle, Mr. E. F. L. Wood, Under-Secretary for the Colonies, said that practice of Crown Agents in giving preference in Colonial requirements to British firms remained.

Only two small contracts for manufactured goods had been placed outside the United Kingdom yast year, namely, dump-cars for harbor works on the Gold Coast to the value of £11,000 ordered from Canada by the desire of the consulting engineers and neo-salvarsan for Ceylon to the value of £7,000, ordered from Germany at the express request of the Ceylon Government.

Kiangsi Fears Looting By Defeated Southerners

(China Press Correspondence)

Kanchow, Kiangsi, July 20.—This city is anxiously awaiting the developments of the next few days. Unofficial reports brought in by the people have caused renewed anxiety. It is rumored that the Southern armies have retired to Wanan, and that defeat is facing them. This is due most likely to the weakening of the front line by the withdrawal of thousands of troops to fight in Kwantung. If they are forced to fall back to Kanchow, what terrible things are in store for us.

When they first invaded this territory it suffered quite a little by reason of raids, made on the pretense of looking for arms. It was only after the generals entered the city that a semblance of order was restored. But if a defeated army passes through here, more than likely we will have to submit to new indignities and further raids.

But what we fear most is the vindictive attitude of the Northerners. We heard some time ago that it was their intention on their return to Kanchow, to play their big guns on the city, till scarcely a stone would be left upon a stone. They were not to respect even the property of foreigners.

This rumor reached here over a month ago. If they are successful in reaching Kanchow, and carry out their threat, we have no place to flee for refuge.

In Kwantung a fierce battle is raging, so we cannot flee southwards. And there will be no exit toward the north. And we have grave fears for the safety of the people. They will surely flee from their homes and crowd into our residence and compound.

If the Northerners carry out the same program as in Kingan, they will no doubt slay many of the people out of pure vindictiveness. And we ourselves do no not feel any too safe. For you are already aware of the brutal treatment meted out to Father De Jenlias in Taiho, who was severely beaten by lawless bands of soldiers in his own home. And even if we had a chance to flee, what would become of the 80 little orphans now under our care, and the devoted women who are caring for them? We must stick to the ship, and if needs be, go down with it.

Word has reached us of a raid on Sinfeng three days ago. The southern army passing through, requested the Chamber of Commerce to advance a large sum of money, and after a refusal to do so, robbed all the shops and homes they could enter.

We were spared a similar fate here, by reason of the promptitude of our local Chamber of Commerce, who acceded to the demands of the army. However, in case of a rout of the forces further down the river, God alone knows what is in store for us.

House Cleaners Find Boxer Writs

(China Press Correspondence)

Laot'inghsien, Chihli, August 1.—The workmen were repairing the old Laot'ing church last week, when they came across a bundle of dusty old papers stacked away between the paper ceiling and the roof. They tossed it out on the floor as so much rubbish, where it lay when the Chinese District Superintendent happened along.

Being a Chinese scholar of the old school he immediately noticed the imperial yellow color and the dragons bordering the paper.

Picking the bundle up he took it home, where it was discovered to contain an edict over ten feet long sent out by the Empress Dowager on her return from her flight in 1900, specifying in great detail how foreigners were to be treated and protected.

There was also a smaller edict of the same year from Li Hung-chang, who acted as intermediary between the Chinese court and the outraged foreign powers, and another edict from the hand of Yuan Shih-k'ai, then Governor of Chihli.

It is not known how these papers came to be hidden in the roof of the church, as no one now on the premises had any knowledge of them. Probably very few specimens of these post-Boxer edicts have been preserved.

Many French Are Still In Russia

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 3.—The French women who were repatriated from Russia on board the steamship California state that numerous French and Belgian subjects are still in Russia. The California, which was chartered by the Red Cross to carry supplies to starving Russians, had to be navigated from Riga to Petrograd through a field of mines by a Soviet pilot.
